I love to write! Ever since I was a five-year-old girl, I wrote stories in my notebooks and on small pieces of paper. I told stories to my friends. As a. grown-up, I have written over 100 books! That's a lot! As a teacher, it's my goal to encourage all of my students to love to write.

"Writing is easy if you're careful enough," I told them. Everyone I meet is a possible character. Everything I see or do is a possible scene in a book. Start looking around you. You'll be amazed at what you discover.

Anyone can be a writer. You just put your pencil on your paper and write what you like to read, step by step: 35

Create great characters. If you know your characters well, they'll write the story for you.

Interest the readers right at the beginning. You can start your stories with dialogues or actions. If you can make the readers ask questions, then they have to keep reading to find out the answers.

Follow the steps. The steps for every story are almost the same: Introduce the characters and the conflict (争端); things get worse; all seems lost; the hero saves the day!

Balance is the key

Remember, when writing, it doesn't hurt to add some humour. 1 What did the writer begin to do when she was five years old?
2 What's the writer's goal as a teacher.?
3 How many steps are there about writing according to this passage?
4 Does the writer think it hurts to add some humour when writing?
