Guided Walking Week April 2016

Dates: April 30th-May 7th 2016

Location: Abdet, Costa Blanca

A week of guided walking in the mountains around Abdet. Highlights include the climbing of Valencia's highest summit (Sierra de Aitana), traveling completely around the impressive Puig Campana, and several explorations in the Sierra de Aitana. Ancient trails lead through spectacular canyons(峡谷) to abandoned settlements situated high in the mountains. You will discover the snow trader routes which lead from the incredible snow holes high in the mountains down to the villages and towns on the coast. These years, golden eagles have made a return to this area, and you may also see other animals—wild goats, foxes, wild pigs and red squirrels.

As part of the week you are invited to help clear some local walking paths. This involves clearing collapsed walls and rocks, cutting back fallen trees. This is of course optional and is just for half a day, it's actually great fun!

Price:$499

Includes:

- Accommodation in the beautiful mountain village of Abdet
- All food-good home cooking
- Beer, wine, soft drinks
- Snacks and post walk treats
- Packed lunches & drinks(except café/bar visits)
- Expert guiding
- Photos/Videos of your days in the mountains
- Airport pick-up/return $25 each way(fly to Alicante)

- Single room supplement $75

To book or get further information, please contact info@abdet.com.

21. What will you find during the guided walking?
- A. Climbing Sierra de Ait-ana is the most exciting
 - B. Ancient trails have changed into highways.
 - C. The environment in Abdet is getting better.
 - D. Traders live in incredible snow holes.
22. What may you enjoy if you pay $499?
- A. Packed lunches including bar visits.
 - B. Good home cooking breakfast only.
 - C. Bus stop pick-up/return each way.
 - D. Pictures and professional guiding
23. What do the details presented in the ad suggest?
- A. Clearing walking paths is a must
 - B. People can book the walking online.
 - C. Accommodation conditions are tough.
 - D. The walking ends on April 30th 2016

Dear Daughter,

As we drove off from Columbia University, I wanted to write a letter to you to tell you all that is on my mind.

College will be the most important years in your life. It is in college that you will truly discover what learning is about. I encourage you to be inquisitive, but I also want to tell you: "Education is what you have left after all that is taught is forgotten." What I mean by that is the materials taught isn't as important as you gaining the ability to learn a new subject, and the ability to analyze a new problem. That is really what learning in college is about— this will be the period where you go from teacher-taught to master-inspired, after which you must become a self-learner. So do take each subject seriously, and even if what you learn isn't critical for your life, the skills of learning will be something you cherish forever, so do your best in classes and learn.

Take care of yourself and follow your passion in college. Take courses you think you will enjoy. Don't be trapped in what others think or say.

Most importantly, make friends and be happy. College friends are often the best in life. Pick a few friends and become really close to them —pick the ones who are genuine and sincere to you. People are not perfect, so as long as they are genuine and sincere, trust them and be good to them. They will give back. This is my secret of success— that I am genuine with people and trust them (unless they do something to lose my trust).

Please treasure your college years – make the best of your free time, become an independent thinker in control of your destiny, be bold to experiment, learn and grow through your successes and challenges. May Columbia become the happiest four years in your life, and may you blossom into just what you dream to be.

Love,
Dad (& Mom)

24. What can we learn from paragraph 2?

- A. Education is what you learn at school.
- B. Ability is more important than knowledge.
- C. Learning and analyzing are equally important.
- D. Colleges only focus on skills of learning.

25. The writer thinks his daughter should_____.

- A. ask for his advice on her choice
- B. make a lot of friends
- C. get along well with her friends
- D. spare no effort to succeed

26. According to the passage, the writer is a _____ father.

- A. wise and caring
- B. strict and warm-hearted
- C. generous and talented
- D. diligent and successful

27 Why does the father write this letter?

- A. To inform his daughter of college life.
- B. To show father’s love.
- C. To broaden his daughter’s mind..
- D. To guide his daughter.

What does it mean to cry over a book? “I’m a reader who did not weep,” Ruth Graham, a well-known critic, wrote. “Does this make me heartless? Or does it make me a grown-up?”

Tears have played a surprisingly important part in the history of the novel. Readers have always asked about the role that emotion plays in reading: What does it mean to be deeply moved by a book? Which books are worthy objects of our feelings?

In different times, people answered those questions in different ways. In the eighteenth century, when the novel was still a new form, crying was a sign of readers’ virtue. “Sentimental” novels, full of touching scenes, gave readers an occasion to exercise their “finer feelings.” Your tear proved your susceptibility (易感性) to the suffering of others.

At that time, sentimental novels were hugely popular, but also easy to attack. Tears, after all, had no necessary connection to actual virtue, and they could be fake. There could also be too many of them. As the critic John Mullan points out, by the end of the eighteenth century, the word “sentimental” had acquired a new meaning — “addicted to indulgence (沉溺) in superficial (肤浅的) emotion” — bringing it closer to the meaning that it has for us today.

In the nineteenth century, the meaning of tears evolved in two different directions. Some writers sought to waken “higher” feelings in their readers: Victorian sentimentalists wrote touching scenes in an effort to inspire social and political reform. However, the “sensation” novel, a different type of Victorian best-seller, showed that tears could be enjoyable in themselves. Sensation novels were the forerunners (先导) of the modern thriller and mystery. Heavy on secrets, and madness, they were known for creating physical “sensations” in their readers — trembling, a fast beating heart, and tears. But these were tears without moral purpose or effect.

Today’s debate about crying while reading looks back on all of this history. The debate, in fact, is about why books matter to us, and what reading is “for.” Talking about what makes us cry is a way of talking about ourselves.

28. What was people’s attitude towards crying over novels in the early 18th century?

- A. Doubtful. B. Positive. C. Uncaring. D. Worried.

29. According to the text, “sensation” novels _____.

- A. were similar to the modern thriller and mystery
B. were the same as sentimental novels
C. aimed for social and political reform
D. tended to amuse the readers

30. The author presents this text mainly _____.

- A. by providing examples
B. by making comparisons
C. by following the order of time
D. by following the order of importance

31. What’s the best title for the text?

- A. Crying while reading through centuries
B. The history of the novel
C. Sentimental novels & sensation novels
D. Why books matter to us

Before I studied psychology, I used to think that people would laugh when funny things occurred. While I was right about that, I discovered there are lots of other psychological factors that make people laugh other than the funny part of a joke. When someone laughs at a joke, there will usually be more than one reason that makes him laugh—and the more reasons there are, the more powerful the joke will be.

I was attending a stand-up comedy show in Egypt, and when the man started to make fun of pedestrians crossing streets, everyone laughed their hearts out. The main reason those people strongly laughed was that almost all of them felt angry towards pedestrians who crossed streets carelessly. The joke wasn't only funny, it also made the audience feel that they were right about being angry at those pedestrians. That is, people were laughing both because of the funny joke and because of the happiness experienced as a result of the psychological support they got.

The better a joke makes a person feel, and the more it includes other psychological factors, the more the person will like it. For example, if you envy one of your friends, and someone tells a joke that is funny and, at the same time, makes your friend seem stupid, then you will probably laugh at it louder than if you weren't jealous of him.

In short, we don't laugh only when we hear something funny; we also laugh when we experience some kind of happiness that results from the other psychological factors involved in the joke. I strongly discourage making fun of anyone or belittling someone to make someone else laugh. All I want to explain is that if your joke supports a person's emotions, he will certainly like it a lot.

32. What did the author find out after studying psychology?

- A. Only good jokes make people laugh
- B. Many factors lead to people laughing.
- C. Funny things can make people laugh
- D. Laughter can make people healthy.

33. Why did the audience laugh loud at the pedestrians?

- A. They played a trick on the pedestrians.
- B. The pedestrians behaved in a funny way.
- C. They could feel the pedestrians' happiness.
- D. Their emotion was approved of by the show.

34. What does the underlined word "belittling" probably mean?

- A. Annoy
- B. Blame
- C. Look down on
- D. Make up to

35. Which of the following best shows the structure of the passage?

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，满分 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

As you're busy with your studies, the weeks during the Spring Festival can be a time when training and healthy eating plans go out of the window. But you can continue running and avoid weight gain during the holiday season. 36.

Pick a race

Having a race on your calendar(日历)is a motivation to keep running during the holiday. 37. Check our active.com or Running in the City for events near you.

Don't skip breakfast

If you're going to a holiday party in the evening, don't make the mistake of skipping breakfast. You may think you're saving calories for later. 38.

Bring your own healthy dishes

Chances are that most of the dishes at holiday gatherings are going to be high in calories. Bring your own healthy appetizers to the party. The host will appreciate it, and you know there will be at least one wise choice on the buffet table.

39

If you're heading to an evening event, eat regular meals and snacks every few hours up until party time. You won't arrive at the party ready to attack appetizers. Make sure you include fiber at each meal because it keeps you full longer.

Plan your runs

It's easy to say that you'll keep running regularly during the holiday season, but sticking to it requires a strategy. Schedule your runs like appointments, so you make them the first thing during a busy week. 40.

- A. Treat yourself
- B. Eat small meals
- C. Try some or all of these strategies(策略)
- D. In fact, it may lead to overeating later in the day
- E. Buy yourself a gift of some new running shoes and clothes

F. If you have runs scheduled, you are more likely to get them done

G. Once you choose one that is in a few weeks, set a plan and stick to it

2. 只允许修改 10 处, 多者(从第 11 处起)不计分。

The “only child” policy has been changed in our country. It is possible that some of us may have a brother and sister. In a survey about the acceptance of a sibling, most of my classmate say yes. They are very glad to have a companion at home, with which they will no longer feel lonely. Beside, they can learn to offer help to others. However, the few who say no is afraid that their parents would love them less whether they had a sibling.

As for me, there be a younger brother and sister at home, I will be very happy. For one thing, a little child is a great fun and I can play with him or her cheerful. For another, I will have an intimate friend to share my life. How nice it is to grow up with a sibling!

第二节 书面表达 (满分 25 分)

假定你是李华, 你所在的学校将要举办一场春节庆祝活动。你和你的同学邀请在你校的美国交换生 Tom 参加。请你写一封信给 Tom, 要点如下:

书面表达

Dear Tom,

You have told me that you are very interested in how we Chinese celebrate our traditional festivals. With the Spring Festival approaching, I would like to invite you to join us in the celebration in our school. A variety of activities will be included at the celebration, such as performances, games and gift-exchanging, which will surely enable you to know better about our culture. To get fully involved, I, together with my classmates, hope that you can put on a performance with us. And I think it will be a good combination of both our culture and yours. By the way, the celebration will take place in the school lecture hall from 7:00p.m. to 10:00p.m. on December 30, 2015, according to the Chinese lunar calendar.

We are looking forward to your reply.

Yours sincerely
