Here is a story about one new teacher making friends with the girls and boys in her class on the first day of school. As the bell rang, the teacher came in smiling at each girl and boy. Then she said in a quiet voice, "Good morning, girls and boys! How happy I am because I have all of you in my class this year. I'd like to know each of you. I am sure we will enjoy working together. I am sure that the more we get together the happier we'll be. "Her voice was so sweet and her looking was so friendly. Everyone believed what she said.

She told the girls and boys her name and wrote it on the blackboard. She told them some of the things she liked to do and she was hoping to do with them during the year.

Then she said to the whole class, "Now you know my name and the things I like. Next I want to know your names and the things you like. Then I will feel that I know you."

Could you make friends by doing the same as this teacher did?

B. Friends often share the same interests with each other.

C. If you can make a good friend, you should smile at him.

One way of getting to know girls and boys in our class is to know more about them. It is usual to be carefully. Write down a list of things that you like friends with those people who have the same interests with you. You can play the same games and go on about them. Think about _6_ you make friends with journeys together.

You may find that some new comers in your class miss their old friends and feel strange and lonely. You can invite them to take a walk or to ride bikes with you. You will find many things in common to talk about. It is one good way to make friends just by talking together in a friendly manner.
