A. 阅读下面短文，从每题所给的四个选项(A、B、C 和 D) 中，选出最佳选项。

A double-decker bus is a bus that has two floors. Double-decker buses are popular in some cities of Europe and in parts of Asia. Some of them are made for short sightseeing for tourists, as William Gladstone said, "The way to see London is from the top of a double-decker bus."

The very first double-decker bus appeared on the street of London during the First World War. They were used to send the troops.

Nowadays double-decker buses are in use throughout the UK and have been more popular than articulated(铰接的) buses because of their shorter length. Most of the double-decker buses in the UK are between 9.5 and 11.0 metres long. Double-decker coaches in the UK have traditionally been 12.0 metres in length. The maximum(最大的) length of a double-decker bus in the UK is 15.0 metres. Although there are no requirements about their height, coaches are normally built to 4.38 metres high.

The red double-decker buses in London have become a symbol of Britain. A special example was the Routemaster bus, which had been the public transport network in London for nearly half a century following its introduction in 1956. Because of difficulties in carrying disabled passengers, it was finally out of use in 2005.
