The pen has played an important role in the development of human society. 36 small, it has done surprisingly more for human beings than all 37 tools or weapons. It has helped 38 the fate of nations, 39 events and carried news.

Any progress without it would have been 40 impossible. The invention of the wheel, the introduction of steam-power and the use of electricity, all these have changed the lives of millions. 41 the pen has done more. It has 42 mountains; it has prepared the way 43 all advancement. Nowadays, the pen is more highly respected than ever. The type-writers clicking in every continent are doing unimportant things, but the pen is the master, 44 all and giving the final say. In the past the pen did all the work, for writing 45 to last for any length of time was valid(有效的) only if written with pen and ink. The most famous letters in the world were written with a pen; and it was with a pen 46 the greatest thinkers of all time wrote down their thoughts. And it was with his pen that Shakespeare 47 the world.

The servant of the greatest, the pen is also the slave of the humblest(身份卑微的). The serving maid and schoolboy may 48 it as they will.

Behind all we do today is the pen. We cannot 49 a check or write a letter or buy a house or complete a business deal without our pen. The editor impresses the world with it, the student would 50 to pass his examination without it, and a deed is 51 till our name is written with pen and ink.

Queen Victoria saved a life with her pen, for when the Iron Duke gave her a death-warrant(死刑令) to sign she wrote “52”, so giving a bad soldier a chance to make 53

Our coming into the world is recorded with pen and ink. Before we have been at school a day our name is admitted with a pen. We cannot be married till we have signed the register. A pen records human's death.

The next time we take up our pen to write, let us remember that we 54 in our hand the most powerful 55 mankind possesses. (386words)

第三部分阅读理解（共 20 小题，每小题 2 分，满分 40 分）

阅读下列短文，从每个小题所给的四个选项中（A、B、C 和 D），选出最佳选项，并在答题卡上将该项涂黑。

A

Nicolai Calabria has already become one of the best 106-pound wrestlers. He has successfully climbed to the top of the highest mountain in Africa, and most importantly, he's changed the attitude of any normal person who watches him compete.

The 17-year-old teenager has one leg. He was born that way, but his goal is to show it's not the one thing that defines him. He would also be the first one to tell you that he just wants to prove to others and himself that he's just like other normal ones.

When Calabria was young, his parents tried different prostheses (假肢) to find out which was most comfortable for their son as he tried to keep up with a family, who has a preference for sports.

At first, the Calabria had their middle child in a prostheses that looked and functioned like a “real” leg, but soon they decided to choose a different path when they found it wasn't beneficial to his movement. Then the family moved him to arm crutches(手杖) and from there a new burst of energy was found.

Getting others to believe that he could take off on the soccer field took a little bit longer. When the Calabrias moved to Concord, they had a hard time convincing the town soccer program to allow a child like him to compete with able-bodied kids. After months and months of debates and meetings, the family received the answer they were looking for. Since then, witnessing a young man on crutches who competes against those with two legs has become a fixed event in the Concord community.

“At that time I had nothing but discouragement working with the soccer community, however, now I have nothing but admiration for the fact that he’s been allowed to play, and people see that he adds value to game,” His father said. “I just think it’s a great result.” (321 words )

56. What is Nicolai Calabria’s goal since he was born?

- A. To be an athlete who can do sports.
- B. To prove that he is a normal teenager.
- C. To have a suitable prostheses.
- D. To change people’s attitude towards the disabled.

57. What can we infer from Paragraph 5?

- A. Calabria was proved to be the most excellent player of the team.
- B. It was not easy for Calabria to be accepted to the town soccer team.
- C. Calabria’s parents didn’t allow him to play soccer at first.
- D. There are some other disabled children in the soccer team.

58. It is implied in the last paragraph that Nicolai’s father_____.

- A. has been discouraged since Nicolai played soccer.
- B. thinks that Nicolai is playing a key role in the team.
- C. is very delighted that Nicolai can play soccer in the team.
- D. hasn’t expected that Nicolai can be allowed to play soccer.

59. What does this passage mainly tell us?

- A. A boy with one leg can do what a normal teenager can.
- B. A boy with one leg is realizing as many dreams as he can.
- C. A boy with one leg can make a sport event more valuable.
- D. A boy with one leg can add value to society.

Many of the girls at her age love nothing more than wearing an outfit with a pair of fancy high-heeled shoes. But at 6 feet 9 inches---with size 11 feet---Jessica Pardoe doesn’t get to wear stilettos very often. For Britain’s tallest teenage girl, shopping for shoes is more of a hateful task than a hobby.

“I have to buy them from specialty shops on the Internet,” said 18-year-old Miss Pardoe. “I would love to be able to pop out and buy a cheap pair, but the minimum cost is around 50 pounds.” Tailoring can also mean trouble, with the art and design student having such long legs. “I haven’t ever heard of any woman with longer legs than mine,” she says. “Fortunately, I can buy fashionable clothes online, although they are much more expensive.”

Despite these annoyances(不愉快), Miss Pardoe accepts the fact that she is tall. “I’m really proud to be this tall,” she stresses. “It does make me more noticeable, but I don’t mind being a bit different. And it has so many advantages. I love going to music festivals, and it’s great to be able to see over everyone’s heads in a crowd.”

However, normal life does bring a few problems for Jessica. She explains, “I recently attended driving lessons. But when I sat in the car, I simply couldn’t fit my legs under the wheel. The driving instructor pushed the seat back as far as it would go, but it was helpless. Luckily his nephew has a bigger car and with the seat pushed right back in that, eventually I fit in.”

Her mother Lisa, an administrator, said, “I expected Jess would be tall. After all, she has inherited both mine and Andrew’s genes. Then other relatives on both sides of the family are tall. Jess has an aunt who is 6 feet 2 inches and an uncle who is 6 feet 7 inches. But I never expected Jess would continue to keep growing as she did, and I never expected her to end up quite as tall as she is now.” (352 words)

60. What does the underlined word “stilettos” in Paragraph 1 most probably refer to?

- A. Fancy dresses.
- B. High-heeled shoes.
- C. Large shoes.
- D. Official outfits.

61. What Jessica Pardoe said in Paragraph 3 shows that she _____.

- A. doesn’t let her height get her down.
- B. doesn’t think she is different from other girls.
- C. often shows herself off in front of other people.
- D. tries her best to attract other people’s attention

62. By telling her story in Paragraph 4, Jessica Pardoe mainly wants to tell us that _____.

- A. she likes overcoming difficulties in life.
- B. people are very willing to help her in life.
- C. her height can be a problem for her sometimes.
- D. she longs to live a normal life like other people.

If you are a college student, probably you are greatly stressed when the final exams are coming. University students are good at coming up with ways to cope with the stress of college life. But some students at a college in Canada have started a new tendency that is family-friendly, opening a puppy room for students during finals week (December 4-6).

The National Post reports that for three days during finals week, students at Dalhousie University can spend some time with lovely dogs, which are being brought in by Therapeutic Paws of Canada. “It is something that people need right now because students are superstressed,” Michael Kean, an environmental science student who first put forward the idea, told the Post.

After the student union first advertised the event on its Facebook page, the news of the Puppy Room spread quickly across social networking sites. “Our expectations are pretty high right now,” Gavin Jardine, vice president of student life at Dalhousie told the Post. “We had 1,800 shares, thousands of ‘likes’. It attracted a lot of attention on Twitter as well. It spread as quickly as a virus.”

Don LeBlanc of Therapeutic Paws of Canada said all the dogs attending the event come from loving homes and enjoy the company of people. A number of different breeds will be on hand to interact with students who sign up to visit the Puppy Room. And success from the Dalhousie Puppy Room has spread so quickly that LeBlanc says a half dozen universities have already called about organizing similar events for their students.

So, is there any actual evidence to support using guest dogs to reduce the stress of busy college students? “If you do any research at all about the benefits of using pets, you’ll find out quite quickly that it lowers blood pressure,” Leblanc said. “It certainly made a huge difference in my life when I got a dog.” (318 words)

67. What is Michael Kean’s attitude toward the puppy room?
- A. He thinks it is bad for dogs.

- B. He doesn't think it is relaxing.
 C. He thinks it is a waste of time.
 D. He thinks it works for college students.
68. Paragraph 3 shows the idea of the puppy room was _____.
 A. surprising                      B. harmful                      C. well received                      D. inspiring
69. We know from Paragraph 4 that some universities want to _____.
 A. find out if their students are also stressed.
 B. follow the example of the college students.
 C. find out why dogs are loved by college students
 D. introduce some dogs from the college in Canada.
70. What's the main idea of the passage?
 A. Puppies have become very popular with college students.
 B. College students have more ways of relaxing than before.
 C. A college is offering more ways of entertainment for students.
 D. A college is offering a puppy room for stressed college students.

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，满分 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的选项选出能填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

Even if you wake up every day with a perfect smile on your face , it can easily be ruined by the difficult people you meet at your workplace . You can't avoid them because they are already part of your daily life. They make your day stressful which gives you a dreadful feeling to leave the work immediately. 71 I will share a few effective strategies which will help you to deal with these difficult people.

Don't take it personally

Difficult people see other's opinion as conflicting to their belief. Their behavior is already habit to them so if you take it personally, they may even plan to make your life more miserable. Remember the problem is not only with you. 72 .

Listen to what they say.

Sometimes what difficult people want is someone's attention and love. There are also difficult people who don't even speak but will just throw you with angry looks to make you feel uneasy. 73 The thought of you standing there and waiting for a response will make them feel uncomfortable and they will just decide to speak up. If they do, listen carefully and analyze it .

Don't get discouraged.

I have already told you that it would be really difficult for you to change their behavior but never give up. It should be you affecting them and not them affecting you. 74 They would not interfere with you again. If they realize that, you can already enjoy your stay in the office or in the school.

75

Instead of dealing with their pessimistic attitude every day , try to look at what advantages these people have . That way, they will start to like and appreciate you . They won't give you cold stares and sarcastic tone voice anymore. But never go too far. (304 words)

- A. See what's good in these people.

- B. Choose topics that you both like.
- C. Difficult people are sometimes suffering from low self-esteem
- D. If this happens, ask them and wait for a minute until he or she speaks.
- E. What's worse is that they can even make your enjoyable day unhealthy.
- F. There must be numerous people who feel annoyed with their unpleasant behavior.
- G. Once they feel that you are different and they can't beat you, they'll learn to become distant.

ONE POSSIBLE VERSION

Dear Wanglei,

I've read your letter and understand your situation. Now I'd like to offer you some advice .

First of all, you should have enough sleep at night because staying up too late is bad for your health. Second, it doesn't make sense to compare yourself with your classmates because every person is different from others physically and mentally. More importantly, it is helpful to develop a positive attitude towards life. Although we attach great importance to the college entrance examination, it is equally important to improve our overall qualities. Therefore, you should take regular exercise in order to keep fit.
