Annie Oakley was born in 1860 in Darke County, Ohio. Her family was very poor. She decided to help her family even when she was very young, so she learned to use a gun, and began hunting animals for food. She could shoot them without losing the important parts of the meat.

Soon her shooting ability became well known. When she was sixteen, she was invited to a competition with a famous marksman (神枪手), Frank Butler. Annie surprised everyone by winning the competition. Later that year she and Frank married.

In 1882, Annie Oakley and Frank Butler started putting on shows together. Frank Butler was the star of the show and she was his assistant. The famous Native American leader, Sitting Bull, thought so highly of her shooting ability that he called her "Little Sure Shot". Later Annie Oakley became the star of the show and Frank Butler was her assistant. Posters (海报) for the show called her the "Champion Markswoman".

During World War One, Annie Oakley wanted to train a group of women volunteers for the army, but the United States did not accept it. She gave American soldiers shooting lessons, and traveled across the country visiting many training camps. She gave shooting performances and raised money to support the American soldiers.

Annie Oakley died on November 3, 1926. Eighteen days later, Frank Butler died too.

Worldwide, the most people willing to return your mobile phone if you've lost it are to be found in Slovenia, and the fewest in Malaysia. This finding is the result of an interesting study in 32 of the world's largest cities. Altogether, researchers "lost" 960 new mobile phones. They got back 654 of them, or 68 percent. Prague came in at number eight. There, 23 out of 30 people who were willing to return the mobile phone.

It wasn't a traditional study. Two researchers carefully chose different places, such as areas with high crime (犯罪) and busy downtown shopping areas, to "lose" the phones. When one of the researchers dropped a phone, the other would keep watching from a distance. The honest finders tried their best to find the owner with the help of the address book in the phone. They were told why the study was done and asked why they acted the way they did.

It was found that the busier the place where the researchers dropped the phone, the greater the chance of it being returned. Another interesting finding was that women were generally more likely than men to return the phone. Researchers also found that most people still have a sense of honesty. "Crime is simply not good behaviour (行为)," said an expert. "People want to trust others, and want to be trusted."

25. Who would be most likely to return a phone, according to the study?

- A. A man who found it in a park.
- B. A woman who found it in a park.
- C. A man who found it in a shopping center.
- D. A woman who found it in a shopping center.

- c. It was a traditional and interesting study.
- d. The busier the place, the greater the chance of the phone being returned.

A. abc B. bcd C. acd D. abd

27. Why did most people return the phones?

- A. They knew they belonged to the researchers.
- B. They wanted to be normal people.
- C. They wanted to be trusted.
- D. They didn't want to commit a crime.

28. This passage is mainly about _____.

- A. why most people returned the phones
- B. whether people in busier places are more honest
- C. a study of people's honesty
- D. the honesty of people who return phones

A middle-aged man with a long beard was caught by the police for bad behavior and property damage. The man, Bill Wild, checked into a hotel last night, telling the clerk he would pay cash in advance and would be staying for four nights. He then asked her where the nearest store was and she told him it was John-Johns.

Wild went to the store and bought three gallons of honey and four gallons of chocolate syrup (糖浆). The cashier asked him why he wanted these things and he replied, "I'm trying to become a sweeter person." The cashier smiled at the joke. Wild drove back to the hotel. He opened all bottles and poured them into the bathtub. He added warm water to the mix. He tuned the radio to an opera music station, took off his clothes, jumped into the tub, and started singing loudly with the music.

Fifteen minutes later, the neighbor phoned the clerk complaining about the noise. The clerk knocked on Wild's door, but he just kept singing. She phoned his room, but he didn't answer. Then she called the police, who arrived quickly. They broke into the room. The floor was covered in water and the bathtub was full of chocolate and honey. "He seemed so nice and friendly. Who'd have thought he was a bathtub-singing nut?" said the clerk. The police said this was the third time that Wild had been arrested for this kind of behavior.

It's important to prepare for rainy days. Similarly, it's important to save money. 36 Why? It's because they've got used to spending all the money they make. Sometimes, the hardest thing about saving money is just getting started. Here are some tips to help you save money.

37 The first step in saving money is to know how much you're spending. For one month, keep a record of everything you spend money on. Once you have your data, organize these numbers by category(类别) and get the total amount for each.

You can make a budget (预算). Now that you have a good idea of how much you spend in a month, what can you do now? 38 To plan your spending, you can build a budget. In this way, you can limit over-spending and make sure that you put money away for unexpected situations.

39 Doing so make it much easier to get started. Begin by deciding how long it will take to reach each goal. Some short-term goals include starting a fund to cover 6 months to a year of living costs and saving money for a vacation. Long-term saving goals are often several years or even decades away and can include saving for retirement and putting money away for a child's college education.

Make saving money easier with automatic transfers (自动转帐). Automatic transfers to your savings account are very helpful. 40 By moving money out of your checking account, you'll be less likely to spend money you plan to use for savings.

- A. You can set savings goals.
B. You can record your costs.
C. You can plan your spending.
D. You can keep a record of what you do.

- E. They can make saving money much easier.
- F. However, some people find it hard to save money.
- G. You can move money out of your savings account.

Text 1

W: Five, four, three, two, one... Here I come! Now, where could you be? Not under the table...not under the bed...not in the closet... There you are — behind the door!

M: You found me, Mommy! Now it's your turn to hide.

Text 2

W: Are you coming skiing with us during winter break?

You

Li

M: No. Unfortunately, I have to stay home with my dog.

Text 3

W: Did you buy all of those vegetables at the store?

M: Nope. I got them from the community garden. I volunteer there after school two days a week.

So, I am allowed to take these home for free!

Text 4

M: Hey, I'll go shopping for food this weekend.

W: OK, make sure you get organic fruits and vegetables. I don't want to eat stuff with a lot of chemicals in it.

M: Are you serious? How can I afford that kind of stuff?

Text 5

W: Excuse me. Do you have this dress in a larger size?

M: What size is that you have now?

W: Medium. But it is a little bit too tight for me.

Text 6

M: Hello, this is Charles Richards from Channel 7 News, and we're down here, uh, at the City Mall, interviewing people on how they celebrate Christmas. And, uh, hi, young lady, what is your name?

W: Elizabeth Carter.

M: And, uh, Elizabeth, how does your family celebrate Christmas?

W: We go skiing, and we go over to my grandparents' house to have dinner with them.

M: And does your family eat anything particular for Christmas?

W: Turkey...

M: Oh, that sounds great.

Text 7

W: Where will we go during this break?

M: I was thinking of a place in Mexico. Do you remember when we went to that really hot place several years ago? Where the water was almost as warm as the air and we had a hard time sleeping at night?

W: Yeah...

M: I'd like to go back there.

W: But...

M: Don't worry, though. We went during the summer last time, August, I think. This time, it'll be winter. It's perfect weather there in January. And we'll be able to watch the whales that live there from December to February.

Text 8

M: Didn't you just get that book from the library?

W: Yes, a few days ago.

M: It looks like you're almost finished with it. Why are you reading it so fast?

W: I like the story so much that I can hardly put it down.

M: Well, we can't get to the library until the weekend. So, you won't have anything new to read until then. You should read only a few chapters each day.

W: I'll do that with the next book. This one is too exciting.

M: What are you going to do for the rest of the week? There are four days left before Saturday arrives.

W: I think I'll read this book again. When I read quickly, I don't remember certain parts very well.

Text 9

M: Sometimes, I wish I could live on a deserted island.

W: Why do you feel that way? I don't think I could stand being away from people for so long.

M: Who said it had to be long? I'd like to live there for just half a year or so. It'd be fun to try it out. I read about a young guy who ran his own Internet business. He could do all his work online, so it didn't really matter where he lived. One day, he decided that he was sick of being around people and doing all the regular things that he did. He wanted a break, but not just a little vacation. So, he found a beautiful, small island where he could live quietly without anyone around him. He caught his own fish, filled containers with rain water, and connected to the Internet through satellite. He did this for six months and then came back into society.

W: It must've been a wild experience. I'm impressed.

M: Yeah, me, too. He's my hero.

Text 10

Anyone who takes a trip to San Francisco should be sure to visit the Golden Gate Bridge. The Bridge was built between 1933 and 1937, and continues to be a popular place for tourists and the people living in California to spend time. Its magical beauty can be seen from many parts of the San Francisco Bay Area, but to really enjoy this amazing piece of architecture, you must see the Bridge up close.

The day before the Bridge was open to cars, people were invited to walk across it. This is still the best way to see it, although today, you must stay on the sidewalk. Some people choose to rent bikes to ride across. Either way, be sure to bring a jacket. The Bridge can be very windy.

For many years, the Golden Gate Bridge was the longest bridge of its kind in the world. However, now there are eight other bridges that cover longer distances. Three of them can be found in China. But even though it lost that title, the Golden Gate Bridge continues to be one of the most famous attractions in the world.
